

CONTENTS

Foreword	7
Part I: Introductory definitions	9
Andrzej Zgorzelski
„Literary” canon unbound	11
Urszula Terentowicz-Fotyga
The canons and the logic of exclusion in literary and cultural studies	15
Part II: Beyond textual canons	25
Joanna Kokot
The Forest Lovers by Maurice Hewlett and the romance legacy	27
Grzegorz Trębicki
Post-tolkienesque fanfiction: cultural parasites or literary commentaries?	45
Part III: Varieties of generic canons	61
Grzegorz Maziarczyk
A (post-)novel? VAS: An Opera in Flatland by Steve Tomasula	63
Ludmiła Gruszewska-Blaim
Canon unbound: J. M. Coetzee’s diary of a bad year	83
Barbara Klonowska
Aldous Huxley’s The Devils of Loudun : the (literary) art of an essay	95
Jadwiga Węgrodzka
Generic canon and animal story: Michel Faber’s Under the Skin	103
Part IV: Cultural and thematic canons	113
Sławomir Studniarz
Ontology, simulacra and hyperreality. Philip K. Dick’s Ubik and the question of postmodernist canon	115
Mirosława Modrzewska
Baron and the Baroque	133
Justyna Galant
Courtly lovers – twins of mischief: the ritual of fin’amors in Middleton’s The Changeling	147
Karolina Trapp
Ekphrasis unbound: R.S. Thomas’s „On a Portrait of Joseph Hone by Augustus John”	163

Part V: Canon(isation) of writers	179
Barbara Kowalik
The canonisation of Cædmon	181
Maria Fengler
What does it mean to be an Irish writer? The case of Michael Longley	193
List of contributors	203
Index	207